The Situk River Chinook salmon run would not be expected to meet the escapement threshold of 750 fish that would allow for the use of dual permits in the Situk-Ahrnklin Inlet and Yakutat Bay north of a line from Point Manby to Ocean Cape if additional harvest were to be allowed. Therefore, the use of dual permits will not be allowed until inseason projections of escapement are at or above the 750 fish escapement threshold. The subsistence, commercial, and sport fisheries remain closed to the retention of Chinook salmon in the Situk-Ahrnklin Inlet until further notice.
